

Micro Minnow

One of the most important fly styles that is often found absent from saltwater anglers' fly boxes are small flies - if you have ever enjoyed success while casting small flies to big fish, you know what we mean! Matching the size of the prevalent baitfish can be critical in many situations, and these small flies from Enrico Puglisi fit the bill! Fish like Snook, Baby Tarpon, Striped Bass, Bonito, Weakfish, and many others frequently feed selectively on small baits, and these flies will help you solve the equation when you find action like this going on. We have also had excellent success fishing these flies to largemouth & smallmouth bass. The Enrico's Micro Minnow flies are pictured above, see below for the slightly larger "Bay Anchovy" fly. Click the photos shown to see closeups.